Press Release:

CURRENT TECHNOLOGIES AND HYPEWIPES, LLC
SETTLE TRADEMARK INFRINGEMENT LAW SUIT

In June, Current Technologies, a small, woman-owned business in Indiana that has manufactured a cleaning/disinfecting bleach towelette known as the Hype-Wipe® since 1994 filed a Complaint against Hypewipes, LLC, a Connecticut start-up business that recently began selling a combination decoration/cleaning pad for electronic devices bearing the designation "HYPE WIPES". The complaint accused Hypewipes, LLC of infringing Current Technologies' Federally Registered trademark "HYPE-WIPE". After a Court mediation on December 2, the parties agreed to amicably settle the law suit. Hypewipes, LLC is changing its name to Picpop and has agreed not to in the future use the name "HYPE WIPES" on its advertising or marketing materials, on its website, or on its products. Current Technologies has agreed that it will not pursue infringement claims against retailers that purchased products bearing the designation "HYPE WIPES" from Hypewipes LLC, and that these retailers may sell their remaining inventory of the products.
